For better autonomy & self-knowledge

All of us are dreaming about an iron constitution . All of us are hoping to spend it's old age without the pain of a disturbing tumor coming from nowhere. All of us are willing to crunch life full of vitality and equanimity. Life could be so beautifull if we could hold on the keys of Being and Health. But where is this Holly Graal ? Therefore, what is the password to access to longevity, and even immortality ? Does a hereafter exist above our uninspired and fragile lives ? Where the genuine magic world hides, the one which gives health, knowledge, true and supreme joy ?

The USA Health field is one of the most profitable in the world : according to OECD data, USA spent 17,1 % GPD with healthcare in 2013. It was almost 50% more than the next highest spender of France with 11,6% GPD, and almost twice the spender in U.K with 8,8%. Since 2009, health care spending growth has slowed down in the US and most of others countries. Exploitation of illness remains a booming and lucrative market, especially thanks to the amasing increase of a constant innovating nanotechnology development. Indeed, all the fields are concerned by this new technological direction. We, humans, from the beginning of History have been limited and under controlled so, we are necessary impressed and subjugated by the admirable and omnipotent medicine authority.

France, for example, has been for a long time a land of plenty for medication. The health system works this way. In the 90's, a patient could buy almost 20 drugs with prescription and be refund in its enterety. How could we name a health system which compels hundred of thousands people through, for instance, the marketing of powerfull psychotropic drugs and a sprawling store network.

For, our country is distinguished by a huge consumption of psychotropics, antihypertensives, vasodilators and antibiotics. One can explain this by the behaviour of prescribing doctors and patients regarding medication : for, both believe in medication. French people, as well as the Portuguese and the Norwegian are the biggest psychotropic users. As a result, France is on the second range behind Portugal for tranquillizers with 134 millions benzodiazepine boxes sold in 2010 and behind Sweden for hypnotics. Thus, we notice the very questionable coalition of the paternalistic model that subjects the patient to the overwhelming authority of a medical doctor and the consumerism of the patient-user who fully agree with the privilege of the medical diagnosis.

As you walk into the corridors of an hospital or push on the door of a chemist's you dedicate yourselves to experts. Hospital may be frightening for, it is synonymous of surgery, serious illness even deadly diseases ; but the chemist reassures with it's promising colorful packagings, welcoming sellers and white coat skilled workers. In those circumstances, who would be tempted to compare them to narcotic dealers ? And yet, is it truly a medicine that replaces opiate addiction with legal equally powerful drugs accepted by the system (Subutex, Méthadone, Suboxone) ? Marketed as pills, the use of Subutex is twisted. Previously dedicated to help heroin addict to get off, it became a door way to addiction. Replacing heroin by Subutex is not a medicine.

Even now, to recover from cancer, the body goes through such strong assaults that it comes out devastated. Indeed, chemotherapy logic is obvious; unfortunately inserting chemical molecule unable to make the difference between healthy and sick cells. This massive attack leads to frightful side effects. In the same way of target strikes of modern wars, the chemical conventional weapon ruins every things on it's way. Cancer patients remain favourite targets to the chemical industry, still after chimio treatment, they become permanent clients thanks to the clinical relief medication industry.

As all of us know, an aspirin tablet might be efficient on physical and psychological pain : it is known as the « Placebo effect ». This one triggers recovery and helps the patient to heal faster.

The « Placebo effect » would be considered by a psychiatrist as a very well balanced minded person. Some other way, the more the mind is strong about himself, others and life, a real confident person, the more the body responds. Despite the obvious efficacy, the official medicine vetos drawing conclusions. The fact is that the « Placebo effect » can't be put under control, restrained and sold : so, the medical community is not interested.

Our body is still mysterious for all of us. We cure but we don't understand the deep meaning of our illnesses, their roots and motives. We keep being of no interest about the occult language's symptoms, our immediate aim being to rid it off as quickly as possible. All in all, our lives slip from our control and we prefer to leave it up to health doctors ; who are perfect unknowns. To cure without understanding the genuine meaning of its sickness, to get back to health by relying on a dehumanized and corrupted system ; here is the absurd process which runs to tragic situations. Existential obscurantism (separation from the Life Science, from his own abilities, from Truthes) dazes the human being and makes him a stranger for himself : we become naive drivers of our body, that an unapproachable matter. We grant the medicinal corp the power that gives it an aura and authority pretty often abusive. Mistreatments, suspicious deaths, contaminations, dangerous medication prescriptions are unfortunately common practice. But, as we don't have access to a genuine science of life being, we remain at the mercy of this medical industry.

Illness means that the body has to say something ! As it is not easy to put in words what trouble ours entrails, so the body says it with pains for, aches can't stay infinitely silent. As unfair as it seems, suffering has a meaning and no one should ignore it. Each symptom, each disorder have a reason to be and each person has to search for the primary cause. What about the purpose of our lives if we remain indifferent to our own body warnings ? Regarding the constitution, the disposition, the family legacy and the sensitivity, those diseases will touch an organ more than another and in a more or less serious way. Even cancer, as scary as it may be, is able to reveal us something unacceptable: the raw truth of Life revealed itself to the one who has just opened his eyes. From patient's status he becomes initiated to mystery of Life. The final countdown to death makes him a guide in the search of Truth and Transcendence (overcoming horror inspired by death and slow degradation). Surely, we can't escape from neither diseases nor old-ageing. It is too rough for us to be seduced by universal laws. Desillusioned, we stay deaf and blind to the observing and embracing Highest Science. At the end, Human being prefers to give himself to the matrix in which he lives, serving the authorities. Anthropocentric and self-concerned, men fail to incorporate in their lives, forces which govern Life since the beginning of Times.

Yet, Universe could be a source of such greatness, amazing knowledge, positive evolution, if only we could identify ourselves to it. Identification is a very helpful process we could engage, a powerful tool of transformation. In fact, it is a common mechanism quite accessible through which we gradually redefine ourselves as the image we have chosen as a model. On purpose, we need to be wide open. This process is more or less what we feel by reading an adventure novel, living fascinating plots of the hero : suddenly we become the Count of Monte Cristo. But, what I refer to is much more rewarding and meaningful, even if very delicate.

In molecular plant biology field, since the beginning, searchers have been able to use at its best this amazing mechanism : greatest discoveries are the result of human being, intellectual, sensory and spiritual adventure. It is only by immersing himself in the plant's enigma that the biologist achieves to extract its wonders. This process will finally allow searchers to discover the very unique molecule they need to cure thousands of people.

Identification is an open-mindedness, sensitivity and intuition basic process. So, pray silence to truly appreciate the richness what comes to you. Make yourself available to the mysteries of Life is not understand finally the Life enigma, it is making yourself accessible to the extraordinary creative energy, the Almighty Force which carries galaxies. The idea to look like a loop antenna or a solar panel, can make you laugh but that's a good start. No one is capable to be an expert the first time. The aim is to play along with the Universe lifeblood able to feed us. Of course, several obstacles will show up here and there, trying to dissuade us, to tease us. Then perhaps we will prefer sitting back in front of the computer or going back to bed.....

So, you see, we are not completely foreigners to this apparently silent intelligence. Actually, we are like Pygmies watching a science-fiction film : sceptical and impervious facing the impressive Star Trek show. So then, we must make a huge effort to jump over the limits of our nowadays knowledges.

Of course, we will surely lose patience because we want every thing as fast as possible. Only our limited and conditioned spirit level may be our own enemy on this way. Here is another identification which rules our lives all the time is : mental identification. In fact, if we do let our brain defines us ; which leads us to create a robotic personality, we reduce considerably the opportunity to understand what Life is. Living our lives through that fake identity, pure mind creation, leads us to be disconnected from a straight contact with Life which make you bigger. All of us know that Life isn't a sum of cookie cutter approach, equations and scholar patterns. Life is different, above and aside our brain, by touching the vital elements. Unfortunately, mental power is really strong, characterized by its force of persuasion. Thwarting mind control behaviour is pretty exhausting. Why should we fight against ourselves ? Isn't it stupid ? Why not opening a good encyclopedia ? Isn't it true that every thing about Life has been explained already about Universe and Life ?

We could spend hours to read quantum physic reviews without learning a single more, for, reading gives no energy ; I am meaning bright, fresh, rejuvenating and creative energy. The main problem is that, up to day, Human Being anthropomorphizes his world. By labelling every details of his near and far environment, man limits considerably his knowledge extents ; he does his best to domesticate universe, reducing it in a ridiculous way as he does to himself. To understand universe through the human consciousness is a tremendous waste of time. What we only do is projecting our own limits, fantasies, conditionings about the Great All. Thus, we project our ignorance on the borderless screen of the unlimited space. Universe is uncomprehensible to the brain which is definitely incapable and so limited. Consciousness is the result of thousands years of civilisation ; the original brain function is to store, memorise and organise informations. So, its statut is very specific to the human history ; it is inappropriate to understand the infinite space. To be able to grasp messages from the Great All, we must immerse ourselves in our apparently impenetrable matter. Tough work, isn' it ? A kind of Utopia you might say. Not sure.....This occupation isn't really exciting at the beginning, but, as the time goes on, you will see amazing results if you play along with conviction and sincerity.

Human being is much more than a citizen, an employee, a father. We are a unique, precious and complex creation, what's more : we are able to create also. Where does that outstanding power come from ? Life is Creativity isn't ? As a matter of fact, we are the children of the sustaining, overwhelming Original Greatness.

Let's go back now to the Holy Connection, forgotten by all of us, wich connect us to the inherent nature of Living, this unbelievable link. It will be the bond with immeasurable, omniscience and infinite. Creation is a curative renewal, infusing transformation. When I contact this healing higher dimension, I can feel its new breeze and inner wave ; and then, I understand the true nature of the Source. We feel lifeless and denatured by living in the lack of it.

As we identify ourselves with the immeasurable universe, we open straight access to this wonderfull Intelligence, wich can finally expresses herself through us. We make real what is unbelievable. That overpass connecting us to the Source of everything will become our partner to reach the unic language : renewal and curing speech. Each person involved in genuine learning will find there a way to hear the truth of his own incarnation on earth ; and will be able to overcome his limits, ignorance and worries to born again rich of an extreme intuitive ability. This link will give them keys to cure unconsciousness and fate.

Thanks to that vital link, they discover an alternative way to communicate, becoming a mirror of infinite. Meet the Sacred is finally meet our true and genuine self-being : the very meaning of Life.

Identification has certainly nothing to do with the mind. Not at all. No use to spend hours to explain this. The personal approach is sacred and silence is needed. The act of trusting greater than ourselves is sacred by keeping vanities and egotic claims quiet. Silence is a welcoming place for indescribable greatness. It is absolutely necessary to leave the ego's empire.

So what can we do with this reality now ? Just one thing : to stay available, without waiting for a miracle, expecting nothing. We have to stop useless formalism and ceremonial: religious principles, rituals, all kind of spiritual codifications, mental strategies faking the Divine, keep us away from straight contact with the Spirit. Just face the omnipresent wisdom and let us deeply nourished. Just let the endless silence enter.....and finally feel your energetic body receiving the deserved blessings, brought by the greatest intelligence embracing the whole being.

The rest belongs to you : what may happen can't be evoked ; it is your's. The food of Life is unic, for your special use.

And, one day, it may happen you meet the Source of Everything.
